

Straight answers without blushes

PRESENTED BY LUD ALLEN & NATASHA ALEXANDER

Sexuality and people with an intellectual disability - a sex positive approach

THIS WORKSHOP WILL EXPLORE the meanings that you give to sexuality and specifically the meaning you give to sexual education for people with an intellectual disability.

You will identify barriers that exist to supporting clients in meeting their sexual health and relationship education needs.

You will use and critique resources specifically made for sexual health education of people with an intellectual disability and explore the benefits of 1:1 education vs small group education and hear how this has been applied successfully in real life scenarios.

SEXUAL HEALTH COUNSELLING & EDUCATION SERVICES

2 George Main Road, Victor Harbor 5211 & 33 Eleventh Avenue, Joslin 5070

Mobile 0422459660

LIMITED SPACES AVAILABLE

Sexuality and people with an intellectual disability

A sex positive approach

Date: 13th November 2018

Where: Merthyr Rd Uniting Church, 52 Merthyr Rd, New Farm, QLD 4005

Time: 9.30am - 4.30pm

Cost: $200- includes morning and afternoon tea

To book your place RSVP

Lud Allen 0422459660/ludcounselling@gmail.com
or Natasha Alexander on natasha@consentability.com

Workshop presenters

Lud Allen

Lud Allen, founder of Sexual Health Counselling and Education Services is a leading South Australian Sexologist. He has been a sexual health and relationships educator with South Australia's principal sexual health agency and holds a Masters in Sexual Health.

He is a member of the Society of Australian Sexologists, World Association of Sexology and has over 20 years' experience in sexual health and disability work.

Dr Natasha Alexander

Dr Natasha Alexander is an experienced clinical psychologist from the UK and is the founder and director of Consentability, South Brisbane. She offers psychological services, training and consultation to teenagers and adults with intellectual or cognitive disabilities and their support networks in the area of sexuality, relationships, consent and safeguarding.

She has infectious enthusiasm when facilitating training and enjoys empowering participants to explore and reflect on the issues that they face within different contexts, including multi-cultural and multi-faith environments.